

UPDATES ON CURRENT NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE ARTS RESEARCH LABS

NATIONAL ENDOWMENT for the ARTS
RESEARCH LABS

The Colorado Resiliency Arts Lab (CORAL) at the University of Colorado, Denver invites you to join a virtual research hub to explore arts solutions to burnout and psychological distress in the healthcare professions. Membership is free!

The Arts, Entrepreneurship, and Innovation (AEI) Lab at Indiana University, Purdue University—Indianapolis will host a research symposium on June 8-9, 2020. Also, check out the Lab’s latest blog posts and recently-published papers:

- “Entrepreneurship among Nonprofit Arts Organizations: Substituting between Wage and Flexible Labor” (Public Administration Review)
- “Local Government Artist-in-Residence Programs Must Include Opportunities for Public Sector Innovation” (Stanford Social Innovation Review)

MasonArc at George Mason University (GMU) held its first conference on arts education research, practice, and policy last October, on the GMU campus in Fairfax, VA. Go to the Lab’s blog to learn about insights from the event.

The Rice University ARCHES (Arts, Cognition, and Health Science) Initiative is busy recruiting adults over the age of 70, and/or those diagnosed with mild cognitive impairment, for a study of how musical creativity can benefit cognition and social/emotional well-being. Read the Archways blog here.

The Arts, Creativity, Cognition, and Learning Lab at Vanderbilt University has published a working paper, “Investigating Artists: Domains of Creativity & Business Practices,” and has archived video from “From Surviving to Thriving: Perceptions of Artists & Implications for Policy,” a public event from last fall.

The Arts Research on Chronic Stress (ARCS) Lab at Drexel University recently had two manuscripts accepted for publication, one in the European Journal of Oncology Nursing and one in the Journal of Alternative and Complementary Medicine. They also released a concept paper on research on art therapy in pediatric oncology settings.

University of California San Francisco recently had a manuscript accepted for publication in NeuroImage.

Researchers at Vanderbilt University Medical Center recently had a manuscript accepted for publication in Music and Medicine.