

Downtown Richmond Art Walk Guide

1 Mural Alive & Free (2014). Artist: Richard Muro Salazar. Courtesy of Neighborhood Public Art mini-grant, and support from the City of Richmond Arts & Culture Commission and Alive & Free.

10 Richmond BART Station “Welcome to Richmond” historical marker from Memories of Macdonald series and ceramic tile murals (downstairs) depicting Richmond throughout the ages. Bonus: 2 sculptures by artist Mildred Howard & poet Ishmael Reed located on east and west walls of BART parking structure. Completed in 2013.

2 Community mural (untitled), c. 2000.

3 Kaiser Permanente sculptures (2012) Five in total on Macdonald Avenue, between 8th and 7th Streets, that tell the story of Richmond during WWII. Artist: Ron Holthuysen

4 Community Green Space park Four murals, three interactive picnic tables, and one sculpture installation dedicated in 1996. Courtesy of the City of Richmond Arts & Culture Commission in collaboration with Richmond Art Center, National Institute of Art & Disabilities, and Richmond Senior Center. Plus: historical marker about Downtown Richmond as “center of town”, located at entrance of park.

5 East Bay Center for the Performing Arts’ Interactive media installation (2012) by internationally-acclaimed media artist Scott Snibbe: incorporates the motion of passersby with pre-recorded video images. Try it out for yourself!

6 Historical marker about Winters Building, part of Memories of Macdonald (2006), a 5-piece installation throughout Downtown as part of the Macdonald Avenue streetscape improvement project. Artist: Ron Holthuysen

7 Historical marker Memories of Macdonald (2006) Artist: Ron Holthuysen.

8 Historical marker Memories of Macdonald, (2006) Artist: Ron Holthuysen.

9 Richmond Works (2005) Ornamental metal fence celebrating the city’s long and vibrant history as a place of industry and opportunity. Additional installation, and information placard, at Nevin Plaza and 15th Street. Artist: Vickie Jo Sowell

There’s so much more public art in Downtown! Just take a stroll and take a close look.